Join us for an insightful briefing on the dynamic world of kids’ health. Child health experts will discuss different ways children receive coverage, emphasizing Medicaid and the Children’s Health Insurance Program (CHIP).

According to new research, children’s health insurance coverage numbers have decreased for the first time in years—over 400,000 more children were uninsured in 2018 than in 2016, and a startling 830,000 children lost Medicaid and CHIP in 2018 alone. Panelists will address this alarming trend and identify policy levers that can keep kids insured, with an eye toward the future. Speakers will also discuss potential barriers to care and the important role Medicaid plays in ensuring kids have access to the specialized benefits they need.

This briefing is conducted in cooperation with the Congressional Children’s Health Care Caucus.
